

CALIFORNIA ETHNIC MEDIA DIRECTORY

Spring 2020

ETHNIC MEDIA SERVICES

Promoting cross cultural communications

NOTE FROM THE PUBLISHER

Ethnic Media Services, founded in 2018 to sustain and build on the work of New America Media, is pleased to publish our Directory of California Ethnic Media, which lists almost 300 news outlets — print, broadcast, digital — across the state. We are grateful for the support of key partners including California Black Media, ImpreMedia, Hoopa Radio, and the Center for Community & Ethnic Media, in compiling this list.

The Directory aims to expand access to the sector at a time when communicating with California’s diverse communities has become more urgent than ever amidst the rollout of the 2020 census, the COVID-19 pandemic, and the economic turmoil it has generated.

This Directory is a work-in-progress — in today’s highly fluid media landscape, we will update the online information monthly. Thanks to support from the Complete Count Committee Office 2020 Census and several national funders, we were able to expand our research and discover ethnic media platforms we never knew existed: podcasts, radio stations, weeklies, online news sites serving newly settled immigrants and long-siloed ethnic groups.

The takeaway from our daily interactions with the sector is that despite the collapse of the business model that has decimated all media, the ethnic news outlets are determined to survive to inform and advocate for their audiences. Some of those outlets have been in operation for decades while others are much newer. Their resilience is inspiring. Their role in creating an inclusive communications infrastructure for this state is indispensable.

We look forward to replicating the California Directory with a national listing of our ethnic media partners later this year.

EMS is a project operating under the fiscal sponsorship of the San Francisco Study Center.
